

Big Room Training – Objectives and Key Results (OKRs)

Overview

The current business landscape is undergoing rapid transformations, surpassing previous rates of change. Conventional annual business planning and target-setting approaches are proving to be less and less effective, so organisations are looking for a new approach that incorporates swifter planning cycles and effective goal setting to help manage priorities, align teams, and develop innovative solutions that yield results.

OKRs (Objectives and Key Results) offer a framework that integrates agile planning cycles with an empowering leadership approach that promotes transparent goal setting, whilst aligning and motivating teams, and accelerating output to effectively realise organisational strategies.
